Context

Businesses across various industries are required to comply with sanctions regulations. This means they need to screen their customers, suppliers and payments transactions against sanctions lists, according to the countries and currencies they operate in. However, sanctions regulations are constantly changing and it can be challenging to keep up-to-date. Public sanctions list data is often inconsistent in terms of content and format and can also be of poor quality, making it hard to maintain high screening standards and mitigate sanctions risk. Screening is important for all corporations, but these challenges are only compounded for businesses with larger volumes.

How SWIFT can help

Sanctions List Distribution allows you to easily access standardised, validated and up-to-date sanctions lists in various industry recognised, screening compatible formats – such as xml and csv. Lists are monitored and updated 24/7 by our data content specialists, who validate, enrich and verify all list content to ensure accuracy and completeness against publicly available sanctions lists. With over 65 sanctions lists to suit your business' needs, our Sanctions List Distributions service is cost-effective, enabling you to successfully manage sanctions risk.
